

1. In a food chain, we use arrows to show the eater.
2. The first organism in a food chain is called producers.
3. Animals that feed on plants are referred to as Primary consumers.
4. Tertiary consumers and carnivores feed on other animals.
5. Consumers are divided into three levels, namely, Primary consumers, Secondary consumers and Tertiary.
6. In a food chain, green plants are referred to as producers.
7. Bacteria and fungi are examples of decomposers.
8. Animals that feed on leftovers of other animals food are called tertiary.
9. Use the diagram below the questions.
Kale → goat → leopard
a) What type of food chain is shown above? Three level food chain
b) The most abundant component in the above food chain should be Kale.
10. In a food chain, omnivores are both Primary and Secondary consumers.

CORRECTION

3. Animals that feed on plants are referred to as Herbivores
4. Tertiary consumers and carnivores feed on other carnivores.
8. Animals that feed on leftovers of other animals food are called scavengers.